C.A. Lindberg - leather slippers

Swedish designer Kristina Stark is well known for her simplistic design in materials such as ceramics, glass, cork, wood and metal.

Fall 2017, Kristina has chosen to work in leather.

The result is C.A. Lindberg, a new collection of slippers for her own brand Design: Kristina Stark.

- My slippers are named after my grandfather who was a true and exquisite craftsman of high quality leather goods. I still remember the smell of leather from when I visited him as a child in his studio and workshop. For many years I have dreamt of working in leather and now the time was right, Kristina Stark says.

C.A. Lindberg is a pair of slippers in naturally veg-tanned leather from Swedish tannery Tärnsjö Garveri. They can be used indoors any time of the day. The inspiration comes from Kristina's grandfather's own slippers as well as the simplest and most common kind of shoes that Swedish people have worn since ancient times – the clogs. Kristina Stark's design has always been about peeling off and reducing the unnecessary, all in order to get to the core of the object.

- By exploring and analyzing different kinds of slippers I have understood the importance of the seam. How it runs around the edge of the shoe and holds the upper part together with the sole. This resulted in a pair of simple but high quality slippers with one upper part, one sole, one single seam and one knot, Kristina Stark explains. Neither more nor less.
